Surgeons Attending Oil Operator Predict Complete Recovery From Wounds

SHOOTS IN SELF-DEFENSE

Mabel Normand And Edna Purviance Disturbed At New Years Celebration

Los Angeles, Calif.—Surgeons attending Courtland Dines, 35-year-old oil operator and clubman of Denver, early Wednesday predicted he would recover from a bullet wound police said was inflicted Tuesday night by Joe Kelley, alias H. A. Greer, chauffeur to Miss Mabel Normand, screen actress.

Kelley freely admitted the shooting, according to the police, even going out of his way to bring them the pistol and announce: "I just shot a man."

Dines, Miss Normand and Miss Edna Purviance, motion picture actresses, were spending the afternoon and evening of a chilly New Year's day in the Denver man's apartment here when Kelley appeared and insisted that Miss Normand leave with him. He had been sent to take her home, he told the police.

An argument is said to have arisen between Kelley and Dines, and Kelley, according to the police, then fired the shot which struck Dines in the chest.

Both Miss Normand and Miss Purviance were much distressed over the shooting. Police found them at the apartment endeavoring to render first aid to the injured man. Both of the young women were held for questioning and later released, after an affectionate scene in the receiving hospital where Miss Purviance rushed over to Dines and implored him not to die. He assured her he would not die.

The surgeon had said the wound in his left lung would not prove fatal. Miss Normand also looked in upon Dines at the receiving hospital and shook a reproving finger at him with the words: "I'm not going to play with you any more. Look at the hole in your shirt. I'm going to get out of this."

ENGAGEMENT RUMORED

Later the three were confronted with a report that Miss Purviance and Dines were engaged, though no one intimated that this had anything to do with the shooting.

A detective lieutenant asked Kelley after his arrest whether it was in fear of his own life or a desire to protect his employer that he shot Dines. "It was fear for my own life," said the chauffeur. "I knew Dines was going to take that bottle and smash me. I shot him to protect myself. He didn't make much fuss about it, but I saw what he was going to do all right. He was just going to do it nice and easy."

Mabel Normand is sick with apprehensions, he said, and should be in the hospital. I tried to get her away from Dines and he would not let her go, when he interfered with me I took out Miss Normand's pistol which I took from her home and shot him."

Dines version of the affair was somewhat different. "We were sitting in the apartment chatting," he said. "We had a few drinks and Kelley came in and interrupted us. He demanded that Miss Normand leave, but she insisted on staying. The he whipped out a gun and shot. I don't know any reason why he should have tried to get me as I positively made no hostile move toward him."

OFFICIALS WILL DECIDE ON SITE FOR DAIRY SHOW

Madison — Decision as to whether the state fairgrounds at Milwaukee will be used for the national dairy show next October and whether the show will be brought to Wisconsin will be made next Monday, Jan. 7, following a conference between Governor Blaine State Commissioner of Agriculture, J. D. Jones, Jr. and W. W. Skinner of Chicago, secretary of the national show. It was announced Wednesday after a conference with Milwaukee officials Monday, the arrangements were left up to the governor and Commissioner Jones.

Gotham Plans New Record Skyscraper

New York—New York's largest office building, 35 stories high and covering an entire block, shortly will rise on the site of the old car barns. Covering the area between Thirty-second and Thirty-third streets and Park and Lexington-aves, it will contain 1,453,170 square feet of floor space, 250,000 feet more than the Equitable building, now the city's largest office structure. Its cost is estimated at $20,000,000. The three upper stories will be devoted to club rooms for tenants.

U. S. NAVAL SHIPS START MANEUVERS

More Than 100 Vessels Leave Ports For Caribbean Sea Practice

Washington, D. C.—From points on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts more than 100 proud ships set out Wednesday for the Caribbean to form the greatest armada ever assembled under the American flag in the navy's winter maneuvers at Panama. With them went more than 2,000 marines from Quantico, Va., and 87 airplanes. The fleet, which is commanded by Admiral Robert E. Coontz, will comprise, when gathered in the southern seas, 15 K-class ships, four light cruisers, 60 destroyers, 11 submarines, one airplane carrier, one strapping tender, four destroyer tenders, three submarine tenders, five mine layers, two transports and 33 train vessels. The marines, who have been preparing for the expedition for more than a month, will participate in maneuvers in Panama and on Culebra island, setting their first target under war conditions in their role of an accompanying landing force with the navy's fleet. They are under the command of Brigadier General Eli K. Cole.

NOTED HYMN WRITER IS DEAD IN ENGLAND

Low Trenchard, England—The Reverend Sabine Baring-Gould, English novelist and theologian and author of "Onward Christian Soldiers" and other noted hymns, died Wednesday.

The Reverend Sabine Baring-Gould, author of many books during his 70 years of literary activity, was best known as the writer of the hymn "Onward Christian Soldiers." He also wrote "Now the Day Is Over." "Through the Night of Doubt and Sorrow," and "On the Resurrection Morn." He would have been 80 years old on Jan. 28. He began his career as a writer at the age of 20 and published works of fiction, history, folk lore, religion, travel and mythology. His last book "A Denison Churchman," appeared in June, 1923. "Onward Christian Soldiers," and "Now the Day Is Over" were written in 1854.

He resided on the ancestral estate at Low Trenchard, North Devon, where his family had lived for nearly three centuries.

JAN. 1 SETS RECORD FOR COLDEST DAY SINCE 1885

Superior — The second coldest Jan. 1 in the history of the head of the lakes weather bureau was recorded Tuesday when the thermometer registered 25 degrees below zero. On Jan. 1, 1885, the mercury dropped to 26 degrees below zero, establishing a record. A slight respite from the cold wave which has held Superior in its grip during the last week is promised by H. W. Richardson, Duluth meteorologist.

WOODSMAN CUTS HOLE IN ICE TO COMMIT SUICIDE

Wakefield, Me.—Matt Hill, alias Matt Koski, 25, a woodsman, committed suicide by cutting a hole in the ice on Jackson's creek, four miles east of here, according to the verdict rendered by a coroner's jury which held an inquest Saturday afternoon. Hill had been drinking heavily and it is believed by local authorities that he was temporarily deranged by excess drinking of moonshine liquor.

CARAWAY ASKS QUIZ IN WOOD FAMILY DEALS

Representative Frear Refuses To Amend Resolution Demanding Probe

Washington—Representative Frear, Republican, Wisconsin, in renewing his demand for a sweeping inquiry into conditions in the Philippines, has taken the position that the scope of such an investigation cannot be determined until ordered by the house or the senate.

Urged by Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, and others, to press for an inquiry into the business affairs of Leonard Wood, Jr., and the stock market transactions of Lieutenant Osborne Wood, as well as the administration of their father, Governor General Wood, in the Philippines, Mr. Frear has declined to amend his resolution calling for an investigation, which has been referred to the rules committee.

Mr. Frear declared Tuesday that "a probe should be made into some of the reputed 'Aladdin lamp oil transactions' of Osborne Wood, 'that finally called for action by the secretary of war and the President of the United States,'" and Senator Caraway said he intended to turn over to the representatives some correspondence he has received on the activities of Leonard Wood, Jr.

PRODUCERS STOP MILK DELIVERIES

Chicago Faces Shortage For Institutions And Invalids As Farmers Strike

Chicago—While milk producers who have refused to deliver milk unless their demands for increased prices are met claim that Wednesday's shortage is 700,000 quarts, distributing companies opposing the producers' demand contend there is milk and cream enough for everybody in the Chicago district.

Farmers who began Tuesday to refuse to ship milk into Chicago to the distributors state their number will be joined Wednesday by others who did not hear of the price disagreement Tuesday until after they had shipped their milk. The full effect of the shortage will be felt Thursday they say.

Meanwhile Health Commissioner H. N. Bundesen is ready to send 150 dairy inspectors into the country to haul in milk for the sick and children, if a shortage becomes acute. The producers association has announced it will supply institutions and private consumers with milk from its Chicago headquarters, and that special effort will be made to prevent any dearth of milk supplies in hospitals.

ZIMMERMAN WILL BUCK SCHOOL FUND

Madison — The emergency fund question was squarely up to Secretary of State Fred Zimmerman Wednesday. Governor Blaine and State Treasurer Lathan certified $155,800 in emergency appropriations for state education institutions late Monday night. Secretary Zimmerman was not in Madison Wednesday and had not officially declined to sign or set up the appropriations. However, he has announced his intention of declining. Mandamus action in the supreme court is expected to test the legality of the emergency funds.

The emergency certificates were signed by Governor Blaine and Treasurer Lathan after a brief conference Monday afternoon. The funds certified include $114,000 for the state university and $41,800 for the nine normal schools. These amounts are approved by the two officials on Dec. 20.

14 Business Buildings Destroyed Or Damaged

U.S. War Munitions May Prevent Mexican Chaos

Decision Of Washington To Aid Obregon Government Is Recognition Of Established Authority

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1924 by The Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Decision of the United States government to sell munitions to the Obregon government in Mexico means more than the mere help of war materials. It carries an expression of moral support which may have far-reaching consequences in Central and South America.

Although on the surface it would appear that there is a contradiction between the policy of the late President Harding in refusing to supply government war munitions to other countries, the decision of the Coolidge administration is really in conformity with the Harding principle. Mr. Harding did not wish to use war supplies by the American government to "encourage warfare." Probably Mr. Coolidge would feel the same way if the supplies were to be used as between two warring nations both of which were enemies of the United States.

Such was the deduction of local statisticians from the announcement of annual figures on wine storage by Internal Revenue Collector Rex Goodell. The total wine storage in the United States, the report showed is 32,353,400 gallons.

While the biggest value to the Obregon administration in the episode is not the readiness of the American government to supply arms but its public announcement of sympathy with the existing government in Mexico city, the decision is not without its dangers. The de la Huerta faction is known to be much more conservative than the Obregon elements. Up to this moment, American business interests have not been involved in any sense as between de la Huerta and Obregon, the position being taken that both groups were friendly to the American investor and businessman. Now, however, it would not be surprising if the de la Huerta faction charged the Obregon administration with being the tool of the Washington government and if an anti-American campaign were waged by the de la Huerta group.

That is always one of the arguments used in Mexican politics. There is no doubt, however, that when all is said and done the moral and material support of the United States government is sufficient to crush rebellion in Mexico of the Obregon administration makes no serious blunders. In reality the decision to sell arms to the Obregon administration is a timely effort to bolster up the Obregon administration and keep Mexico from going back into the chaos of previous years.

MEETS ANGEL GIRL; RESUMES LIFE TERM

St. Louis—George V. Parr, convicted murderer who escaped from the Clayton, Mo., jail on Oct. 15, 1922, along with five other prisoners, has written from Scranton, Pa., that he would give himself up to serve his life sentence. He asserts in the letter that he is innocent, but "am coming back to pay the debt I owe the law."

Parr was convicted of the murder of Sheriff Eugene Conroy of St. Louis, Mo., with Marshal Ben Corner, who was killed on Aug. 30, 1920, when they accosted three youths to question them. Willis Millard is serving a life term for Corner's death. Parr has stated repeatedly that he did not fire any of the shots.

Parr in the letter said he had a good position as a traveling man, and the principal reason for his decision to give himself up was the "trust and confidence in me" of a girl of whom he wrote: "If there is a such a thing as an angel she must be one."

GIVING STARTS TODAY FOR STARVING GERMAN TOTS

Outagamie county's campaign to aid sufferers in Germany formally opened today in chair of a committee of 50 citizens. A liberal donation is expected here toward the state goal of $500,000.

Each person who intends to help the sufferers is expected to make his gift of money to one of the banks of the county, where official receipts will be issued. Churches and other organizations which vote money or take up offerings may turn these amounts over to any of the banks or to the secretary of the fund, Hugh G. Corbett, secretary of Appleton Chamber of Commerce.

Wisconsin has entered heartily into the campaign and many of the amounts raised in various cities run into the thousands.

This money is to be used to feed those who have been rendered destitute by the chaotic conditions in Germany. There are 7,000,000 children of disease, and America as a mother of mercy is coming to their relief with money so they may survive the winter.

Go to your nearest bank today and add your offering to the county fund. Every cent will go to the feeding of these innocently suffering tots. No expense money comes out of the gift and the supplies purchased in this country are shipped to Germany free.

Fire Starting in Furniture Store at Noon on New Years Day Sweeps Over Parts of Two Blocks in Business Section—No Serious Injuries

The most disastrous fire in the history of New London on New Year's day destroyed or damaged fourteen business buildings in the northside business district of that city, rendered ten families homeless and caused a property loss conservatively estimated at $125,000. In spite of the extent of the blaze, which swept over parts of two blocks on the south side of North Water-st, there were no serious injuries but there were a number of hairbreadth escapes. One volunteer fireman was slightly hurt when he fell off a ladder, two firemen fell into the Wolf river from which they were taking water and one man was burned slightly about the face and hands.

A stiff wind blowing up the river from the west carried the flames ahead of it. The fire was checked by a fire building and dynamiting of a brick veneered structure to enable firemen to get into closer contact with the flames.

Wind Shifted
Late in the afternoon the wind shifted to the south and carried burning embers across the street, threatening other buildings. One building across the street was ignited but the fire was extinguished before there was any damage.

Four buildings were utterly destroyed by the flames, two were wrecked in order to check the spread of the fire and the remainder were damaged by fire, smoke and water. The contents of several stores were ruined by smoke and water, although the fire itself did little damage. Big plate glass store fronts across the street were cracked by the intense heat.

It was estimated the property loss on buildings was total $75,000 and about $45,000 damage was caused to household furniture and to stock and equipments in stores and offices. Several businessmen were able to move most of their stock out of the threatened buildings before the fire reached them. There was a considerable loss from breakage while the stock was being moved.

STARTS IN FURNITURE STORE

The following buildings were in the fire area:
Rosenstreter and Eloy furniture dealers and undertakers. Iron clad frame building stocked to the roof with furniture, a total loss. The fire started in that building.

Andrews and Sullivan barbershop, owned by Mrs. J. Cooper, brick veneered building, wrecked completely. Charles Hickey saloon, brick veneered, totally destroyed. Mr. Hickey and his family lived upstairs and lost practically everything.

G. A. Savall saloon, brick veneered building owned by E. A. Kossel of Oshkosh, total loss. The Savall family occupied living quarters in the second story. They were unable to save their personal effects.

Klaus Bros. Co. meatmarket, two story brick veneered building, burned out and equipment a total loss. The equipment included a new refrigerating plant valued at $7,000, a large ice box worth $3,500 and other valuable equipment. A two story cement block addition in the rear was nearly completed when the fire started. This building, of fireproof construction, is credited with being of material assistance in fighting the fire.

SHOE STOCK RUINED
Mrs. Emma Hopkins' millinery store owned by Mrs. Hopkins and by a family living on the second floor. The interior and the stock was destroyed.

Charles Kische shoe store, brick veneer building, burned out in the interior and most of the stock ruined. A double building of solid brick owned by John Wagner withstood the flames admirably. Schelder Bros. grocers, one of the tenants were in position to resume business Wednesday morning although the store was well within the fire zone.

W. J. Seder, jewelry store was only slightly damaged but considerable stock was missing Wednesday morning as a result of removal from the store.

GOTHAM BANDITS TAKE OPIUM WORTH $100,000
New York—Nine men held up five guards on a Brooklyn pier at daybreak and escaped with ten cases of opium.

The guards were bound and gagged. The thieves wheeled the cases to a waiting automobile.

The opium, sent from Turkey to a Brooklyn wholesale druggist, was valued at $100,000.

'INSTANT HEAT' PROMOTER HELD FOR MAIL FRAUDS

Operation Of Appleton Plant More Remote With Arrest Of Persons

Characteristics of H. L. Barber's and F. V. Persons' promotion of this company and recent developments show that our stand was justifiable.

"The Universal Utilities company, of which Charles F. Riebel is president, Richard N. Woodfall, vice president, and Frank H. Gerodette is treasurer, claim to be manufacturers' distributors, exporters and importers. Their chief activities, other than their consolidation with the drug company appear to be the operation of a mail order business in a concentrated line."

CITY GETS NOTORIETY

Appleton began to receive unwelcome notoriety in connection with this company when the Appleton Wonder Instant Heat company, organized by the late Alfred Archibald, was sold to the Instant Heat company, which was understood to have a plant also in Chicago.

Persons was announced at the time as president of the Instant Heat company and launched a stock sale in the east with the purported intention of refinancing the Appleton plant and beginning the manufacture of metal heat bottles here. These produced heat by means of a chemical filling, it was said, and took the place of hot water bottles. Most of the stock sales were being made in the east. It was shown by the letters. Machinery had been installed here but it is not known that operations ever were started. The office was discontinued here for a time but has been closed several judgments have been taken on the property recently to satisfy claims of indebtedness.

Mr. Barber's identity with the instant heat company's activities became known to Appleton people some time ago when the vigilance committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World broadcasted a 4-page circular, describing what it termed misrepresentations contained in the advertising matter which was being sent out offering this stock sale. Mr. Barber's name was published for sale. The Appleton plant was pictured to the investors. It was distorted considerably as to size and number of buildings, and showed smoke piling from a group of smokestacks as though the institution were operating extensively.

Very few people in Appleton or in fact in the state of Wisconsin were sold this stock because it was learned that the railroad commission was reluctant to permit the sale under the blue sky laws and was watching the company's operation.

No word has been received here as to the effect of the federal indictment which will have on the Appleton property of this concern.

It is understood here that the Associated Drug Industries, Inc., mentioned above was a company that would operate a chain of drug stores. Its stock was offered Instant Heat company investors. As nearly as could be learned in Appleton the argument to stockholders was that the sale of heat bottles had been unsatisfactory through regular drug trade channels, and the proposed chain of stores would assure a market.

Rubbish Burns

Firemen started off the new year with a summons to a fire on Washington-st. in addition to the call to the big fire in the New London business district. A blaze originating from a pile of rubbish and cardboard burned in the basement of the home of A. M. Beginger, proprietor of the Majestic theater. The fire occurred at about 10:15 in the evening and was soon extinguished without any damage.

All Civic Activities Merged In Ohio City

Middletown, Ohio's merger of all civic activities into one organization is attracting attention here because of the frequent demand that is heard in Appleton for one financial campaign for all purposes instead of a series of drives every year and the duplication of administration.

The Ohio city has disbanded its chamber of commerce and has launched what is called the Middletown Civic association. It operates on a membership plan and is made up of 4,445 individuals who contribute $174.184 annually. The Y. M. C. A., public library, boy scouts, hospital, girls' training school, girls' club, girl scouts and Salvation Army are maintained out of this fund.

A board of governors is elected by the members and this body has charge of the entire civic activities. An executive committee is provided which administers home service, public health, soldier relief, employment, agricultural extension, celebrations, conventions, a recording bureau and a municipal music department. The board engages competent and trained persons to manage each of the departments.

Unification of operation of civic, commercial, industrial and social activity results from this plan. There is one board and one budget, lack of duplication and low administration cost. Offices of all departments are in the same building and one clerical force is used for the detail work.

Part of each year's money is deposited in a sinking fund which will be used for a community building in which all these offices eventually will be located. The plan is not that of a community chest, because there is no distribution of funds. A quantity of literature describing the whole plan is in possession of Appleton Chamber of Commerce.

OIL FUMES OVERCOME MAN IN HIS GARAGE

The police patrol bearing Detective John Duval, Driver Albert Deltgen and Patrolman Edward Ratzman answered a call at 5:30 in the evening of New Year's day to 1165 Ryan-st. where Orrin Schillabel, 25, was overcome by gas fumes arising from an oil stove. The man was working in the garage at the time. He recovered sufficiently however, so as to make a trip to the hospital unnecessary.

TRUCE IS REACHED IN BUS QUARREL

A temporary compromise has been effected by the City of Neenah and the Tri-City Transportation company in the controversy on the schedule of buses running between Appleton and Neenah. Legal counsel for A. C. Roman, proprietor of the bus line, conferred with Neenah officials Friday, and it was decided to await decision on cases now pending in the municipal court in Oshkosh. Meanwhile the bus company will add another bus in order to complete the half hour service and avoid conflict with the interurban cars of the Wisconsin Traction, Light, Heat and Power company. Roman intends to carry the fight on the schedule provision of the city ordinance to the higher courts. Four cases of drivers arrested for violating the ordinance will be used for a test.

FORUM RESUMES SUNDAY WITH TALK ON COAL PROBLEM

J. L. McMahon Will Discuss
Operators' Side Of Controversy

After a pause of a few weeks, the People's Forum will be resumed on the evening of Sunday, Jan. 6, with an address by J. L. McMahon of Milwaukee, on "The Coal Controversy." Mr. McMahon will represent the coal operator's side of the problem. His address will be followed on Jan. 13 by another to be delivered by a speaker who will present the miners' side.

It is hoped that there will not only be a good attendance but that the visitors will be generous in their offerings. The average collection has fallen short of the average amount necessary to pay the expenses for speakers.

A balance of $24.95 is reported by Fred Bachman, treasurer of the Forum fund. Total receipts thus far have been $483.72. The disbursements have been as follows: Expenses of Pittman B. 'CHURCH NIGHT' IDEA LAUNCHED

Congregational Families Will Have Supper And Program Thursdays

A new activity called church night has been started at the First Congregational church under auspices of the board of deacons and the first meeting will be held Thursday evening. This gathering will take the place of the progressive classes usually held at that time and will begin at 6:30 with a supper for members and their families. Letters have been sent out by the deacons inviting all members to be present.

Wider acquaintance and social enjoyment among the members will be fostered under the new plan. The supper will be followed by a program, consisting of either entertainment, talks on church and current topics. Each meeting is to be adjourned by 8 o'clock so as to permit other engagements of members for the evening to be filled.

'Y' OPEN HOUSE ATTENDED BY 350

More than 350 persons attended the open house at the Y. M. C. A. New Years day. The program opened at 1:30 with a reception in the lobby with members of the Greeters club acting as the reception committee. Music was furnished by the Classical trio.

At 2 o'clock the younger boys gave an exhibition in the gymnasium which was followed by an Indian club drill by the Leaders club. At 3:30 there was a basketball game between the college freshmen and Y. M. C. A. which was won by the college men by a score of 14 to 2. A volley ball game was played between two Y. M. C. A. teams.

While the basketball game was in progress a swimming exhibition was given in the swimming pool. The program closed with the lobby show from 4 to 6. In the basement there was bowling and billiards from 2 to 6.

HIS CELEBRATION ENDED AT LOCKUP

Antics Of Joseph Schmidt Cause
His Arrest At Depot For Drunkenness

Prohibition or no prohibition, Joseph Schmidt, a resident of Oshkosh, intended to preserve a national custom by celebrating the death of an old year and the birth of a new. The celebration cost him $14.40 in addition to whatever he paid for the moonshine liquor that made him boisterous.

Attracting considerable attention by his carousal in the Northwestern station, Monday afternoon he finally fell down on the floor breaking a bottle in his pocket. The first impression was that he had ruined the family supply of catsup, but the strong odor that soon permeated the building left sufficient to the imagination.

He was injured somewhat by the fall and a few hearty respondents in sympathy toward him, but when Chief George T. Prim and Officer Albert DeGente arrived to take care of the drunken man, he began to heap abuse words upon them. In the patrol too he showed a strong aversion to incarceration by behaving in a violent manner. He was very drunk.

In municipal court Wednesday morning, Judge A. M. Spencer directed him to pay a fine of $5 for being intoxicated and $5 for abusing an officer. Costs amounted to $4.40.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

Forms for filing individual returns of income for the year 1923 are available at offices of collectors of internal revenue and branch offices. Copies have been sent to persons who filed returns for the year 1922. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve the taxpayer of his obligation to file his return and pay the tax on time.

Persons whose net income for 1923 was derived chiefly from salary or wages and was not in excess of $5,000 should use Form 1040A. Heretofore used for reporting net income of $5,000 and less from whatever source derived, Form 1040A has been revised in the interests of the largest class of taxpayers. Reduced from six pages, it consists of a single sheet, in which space is provided for answers to only three questions in relation to income: Salaries, wages, commissions, etc.; interest on bank deposits, notes, mortgages, and corporation bonds; and "other income." On the reverse side there are instructions for making out the return.

Persons, any part of whose income is derived from business, farming, or profession, sale of property or rent, should use the new Form 1040. The use of the 1040 form also is required in all cases where the net income is in excess of $5,000, regardless of whether from salary, business, profession or other taxable sources.

The return, sworn to by a notary or other person authorized to administer an oath, must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer lives or has his principal place of business. The filing period is from January 1 to midnight of March 15, 1924. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return or in four equal installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15, and December 15. Heavy penalties are provided for failure or "willful refusal" to file the return and pay the tax on time.

The Erring Wife and Mother is the woman who sacrifices her health and consequent happiness to her ambition. We all know such women—those whose homes shall be kept immaculately neat and attractive and their children well dressed they overdo and soon bring on some feminine ailment which is evidenced by nervousness, irritability, headaches, backache and other aches and pains attending such ills. Every woman should remember that the most successful remedy for such conditions is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound which for fifty years has been restoring women to health, strength and happiness. adv.

The Best Cough Syrup is Home-made.

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have the best cough remedy you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this well-known plan of making cough syrup at home. But have you ever used it? Thousands of families, the world over, feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it a permanent place in your home.

Put a pint bottle, pour 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified molasses, corn syrup, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy, ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Pinex, Pinex tract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments. NEW ENGRAVING COMPANY STARTS

Appleton Engraving Co. expected to start operations Wednesday in the former waterworks plant which has been remodeled for its use. The company is a new one which purchased the art and engraving departments of the Menasha Printing and Carton company, Menasha.

Moving was completed Monday, and workmen were employed all day Tuesday connecting up machinery and motors and getting the plant in readiness.

It will take several days to get things in smooth running order, according to George M. Walker, general manager, but the company is endeavoring to prevent interruption of its service through the removal.

Twenty-seven people are employed in the plant, many of them highly skilled artisans.

GERMANY AND THE UNITED STATES

A nation-wide humanitarian drive for the relief of the starving children of Germany is in progress. While it is meeting with the success that an appeal of this kind merits, many of the people of Germany will still be left in a precarious state as to food and clothing. It is a strange fact that many of those people in the United States who today are taking an active part in the efforts to assist Germany are the ones that supported the politicians at Washington who have held this country to a course of policies in no small degree responsible for the severity of Germany's distress.

After all is said and done, the United States is the great stabilizing and mollifying influence in the world. If this influence is not extended in one form, it is in another. Where our government fails, or has failed, in contributing this influence for the benefit of distracted Europe, recourse is had to popular initiative. We think that as time goes on clear-thinking and unbiased people will realize more and more the helpful part the United States might and should have played in the peace and post-war problems.

Let us admit that the Versailles treaty was in some respects inequitable and unnecessarily harsh. The records of the peace conference show that wherever these wrongs found expression in the treaty they were vigorously opposed by Mr. Wilson. Whether he obtained all of the concessions on the side of justice and right that other men might have secured we will not attempt to say. He labored against odds that those who speak glibly and superficially of the peace conference, and who have little real knowledge of what transpired there, do not take into account. His supreme effort was, of course, directed toward securing assent to a league of nations to promote and enforce peace. In this he was successful, although bitterly opposed by most of the great powers.

It was Mr. Wilson's theory, and we have always believed he was right, that this association of nations with the United States included, would prove a powerful, and even irresistible, force for the accommodation of differences between nations and for the settlement of controversies that lead to war. It was also Mr. Wilson's idea, and in this we also coincide, that this league, with the United States in it, would have brought about through moral pressure revision of the peace treaty more in accord with ethical principles, and would have had altogether a moderating effect upon the signatories. We know, at least, that the United States would have exerted its efforts in this direction and that the whole weight of its moral strength would have been thrown into the scales of justice. We believe it is an entirely reasonable assumption that the counsel and advice of the United States, in the face of the serious problems, vicissitudes and widespread ills that followed, would have been potent and effective.

Had the United States remained a party to the peace treaty, had it gone into the League with or without reservations, had it become a member of the reparations commission, who is there to deny with any certainty that the impasse between Germany and France would never have developed, that the occupation of the Ruhr with its attendant evils and repercussions would never have occurred, that some of the wars which have since been fought would never have happened? Those who would argue to the contrary underestimate, we believe, the great force the United States is capable of wielding for moderation and justice in the face of crises and palpable injustice.

What is the situation today? Could it conceivably be much worse, especially as to Germany? And Germany is the pivotal point about which the entire European muddle revolves. The German financial system is a wreck, a large portion of German territory has been seized by the French as a guarantee of indemnity. She is economically prostrate, she has suffered civil war, millions of her children are facing starvation, she is flat on her back and appealing to the world for charity, just as a man without any arms, or legs, or eyes appeals for the pennies of passersby. If American participation in the peace treaty, on the reparations commission and in the affairs of Europe, that League membership permitted, would have made Germany's lot any worse it would be timely for her partisans in this country who opposed acceptance of America's peace responsibilities jointly with her allies and her friendly cooperation with them, to particularize. We think the chances are ten to one that Germany's lot would be vastly better, that feeling throughout Europe would be more chastened, that French fears would have been more appeased, had the steady and conciliating hand of the United States been on the job.

Nothing in Europe is settled yet. Civil wars and wars between nations go on and are threatening. Germany does not pay and is in chaos. Everything is topsy-turvy. What happens? Before the mess can be straightened out the United States must intervene in spite of itself and in spite of our isolationists. We are going to try and help iron out the reparations deadlock. We are going on commissions. We are sending millions of dollars to Europe to prevent famine and sickness. We are going to try and help restore Germany's financial system. The European problems cannot be solved without us and we are being compelled to do our part. It seems to us, in a way that is not flattering to our judgment and decisions of three and four years ago.

Had we seen the thing through from the end of the war, and had the encouragement and cooperation we offered failed of results, we could at any time the situation became hopeless have withdrawn and washed our hands of the business. We could have done this even though we were in the League. We could have interpreted our obligations as we pleased, and we could have cancelled our membership entirely. We had a free path to whatever course we chose. Those who are today sympathizing with and lamenting the misery of Germany, and the chaos in Europe that has produced it, along with other complications that are of a decidedly menacing nature, would do well to go back over American history dating from the end of the Paris peace conference and frankly and conscientiously look the facts and the consequences of party and governmental policies squarely in the face.

A WHITE COLLAR NATION

In an address to the National Society of Vocational Education, in Buffalo, Secretary of Labor Davis warned us against becoming "a white collar people." We are educating ninety per cent of our youth for white collar occupations, he said, while there are jobs for only ten per cent of them.

"The nation," he said, "whose workers are untrained and deficient will find it difficult to hold even its own home market in the period of aggressive competition, which is bound to come when Europe recovers from the depression which followed the war, and steps forth with assured economic stride."

To a great extent, Mr. Davis' fear of "the white collar" is well founded. The white collar is an insignia of dislike for hard or dirty work. Everybody aspires to filling a clean and easy occupation. But all kinds of work, except common labor, are becoming "white collar" pursuits. Men in the trades are well paid. They go to and from work in automobiles and wearing white collars. This is the age of machinery and large scale production and most work is not dirty.

Mr. Davis, meant, of course, that young men should select professions or trades, or businesses, and equip themselves for their work. They should not all aim to be professional or office men, but should seek out the vocations in which the most favorable opportunities for good pay are offered.

PHANTOMS OF THE DAWN

A little while ago I hope my younger friends will remember, I suggested here a practicable excuse for remaining out of school a day or so, to wit, coryza. That this suggestion found a wide welcome seems certain. One attendance clerk in a large school tells me that there has been a frightful epidemic of coryza since I offered this simple hygienic advice. Today I take great pleasure in bringing science to the support of the school boy and school girl who do not deny that they heard mother calling, yet fail to get up in time and consequently find themselves tardy in arriving at school.

It is a plain physiological circumstance, children. It is a valid excuse for being a little late in the morning. The fact is that a normal process of awakening from sleep one first regains consciousness of sound sensations and a little later the capacity of voluntary movement. So, you see, it is quite true that a father hears his mother calling and telling him it is time to get up, although he has not yet recovered the power to get up. Of course this excuse, like coryza, won't do to use habitually, but for an occasional tardiness it is absolutely tight and solid proof.

The twilight state, if I may so call it, between sleep and waking is a strange state of half or fractional consciousness during which weird things happen or seem to happen. If one can carry the memory of these weird things over into the fully conscious state, likely enough one will have a very good yarn, maybe a real idea, an invention, a plot for a story, or something else of considerable value. To some persons these happenings of this twilight consciousness, that the phantoms of the dream are assumed to have occurred in reality. Thus many a man has come to swear he has seen ghosts, received visits from spirits or otherwise entertained phantoms.

People who sincerely believe they have experienced these actual spirit manifestations are akin to the hysterical, not in the common or vulgar sense of the word hysterical, but in the true medical sense. Hysteria means to the physician a state in which an idea controls the body. About the nearest a normal individual comes to hysteria is this twilight zone between sleep and waking. One who is hysterical is no more to blame for the manifestations of his disease than is the epileptic for his fits, or some part of his consciousness is to all purposes asleep or in abeyance, very much as Johnny's power to voluntary movement is in abeyance although he hears his mother calling him, all right. We might say that Johnny is suffering for the moment with total hysteria paralysis—a paralysis which seldom fails to respond to vigorous suggestion, but which is nevertheless real paralysis until Johnny gets fully awake. On the same ground we might properly consider all who testify to having actually seen spirits or talked with them as subjects of hysteria minor. These people are all abnormally susceptible to suggestion.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

That Anxious Feeling
Whenever I hear the ambulance clanging past in the night or the police patrol siren breaking the peace, I wonder—and I think this is really nullifying the effects of my food iodine—I wonder if some one has been mixing himself one of my newspaper remedies. When I was young and in my journalistic prime I printed recipes and formulas nearly all the time, but now that I get little benefit from my iodine I think it safer on the whole for readers to call a doctor in.

Iodine, Iodine, Iodine
Please inform me which it was that you recommended to be used internally as a sort of old age procrustator—iodine or iodum, and also at you will kindly reprint the formula, dosage and directions for its use.—S. G.
Answer—Three ways of spelling the same thing, iodine was the older spelling, iodine is never spelled iodum is the official Latin name. Read the output preceding this; then send a stamped envelope bearing your address and I'll mail you the information you desire.

LOOKING BACKWARD

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Wednesday, January 4, 1899

Charles Collar and Roy Potts were Oshkosh visitors.
Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Schreier returned to their home at Manitowish after a several days visit with Appleton relatives.
Mr. and Mrs. A. Wirth of Milwaukee were guests of their daughter, Mrs. D. F. Mammel.
Henry Wendell, Jr., and James Scott returned to Chicago to resume their studies at Rush Medical college.
George Baldwin who was taking a course at a Chicago law school, returned to his studies after spending the holidays at home.
Dr. H. Trask, a Marquette specialist, moved to Appleton to establish a medical institute.
Patrick M. McCormick, 85, died at his home at 812 First at the previous night.
Harry Lee and Miss Cora Putney were married the previous Saturday evening at the home of the bride's mother on Oneida-st.
William F. Saecker, H. G. Saecker and F. E. Saecker spent New Years with their brother, August Saecker, at Hingham.
Horace Tenney and daughter of Chicago were in Appleton the day previous assisting H. W. Tenney in the celebration of the seventy-seventh anniversary of his birthday.
Mrs. William Koester, 57, died the day previous after a prolonged illness.
C. S. Dickinson of Chicago, the new cashier of the Commercial bank, assumed his new duties.

TEN YEARS AGO

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

We resolve:
1. To learn Mah Jongg so as to be able to read the laundry tickets.
2. Just as soon as we get around to it to change the ribbon on this mill.
3. To refuse to work on New Year's day.
4. To do our Christmas shopping early.
5. Before the day is over to kill that fly that's been buzzing around our head.
6. To smile twice on Wednesday at our two proof readers who are the most constant readers this column has.
7. To make no resolutions.

A Puzzler

What's worrying most of the Doodads now is: What shall they do with the extra day in 1924? Why not devote it to a solemn meditation on the reason why the length of women's dresses changes so often.

H. A. S. at the court house would like to make a resolution against swearing, but what's the use, when he gets brushed by an automobile crossing an arterial highway at the rate of 30 miles an hour, and the driver yells back, "D— you, you will get hit yet, won't you?" Still, he's very thankful that the cars don't pursue him on the sidewalk.

Industry Uses Big Berthas For New Machinery

(From Paris Matin.)

The long-range guns that bombarded Paris in 1918 were built in the Krupp works. Seven guns of this type were made, in all. When the German army began its movement of retreat in the summer of 1918, three of these pieces were in service at the front while the others were still in the Krupp factory. As there was no more chance of bombarding Paris, two of them were completely taken apart; some of the parts served to build other cannon, while the rest was melted up.

Two other guns had been so used up that they could be no longer employed for long-range work and were finally broken up at the work. On the signature of the armistice there were in existence only three long-range guns, which had been placed since the beginning of the German retreat. It is therefore not at all strange that despite the precipitate retreat of the Germans, the cannon in question were not discovered. Forseeing the occupation of the Ruhr, these three guns were completely destroyed in the course of the year 1919; their remains were broken up or used for building industrial or other machinery. All the statements made in divers places, according to which four long-range cannon still exist in one form or another, are absolutely without foundation.

Apply Magnetic Fields To Ailing

(From Scientific American.)

Curious effects have been incidentally observed by a well-known Swiss engineer, Mr. E. K. Muller, of Zurich, while treating rheumatic and nervous complaints by the application of magnetic fields, changing direction about 100 times per second. In fact, any infectious diseases his patients happened to be affected with would undergo a most beneficial influence, severe colds disappearing in a surprisingly short time—sometimes in a day or so.

When this state of affairs became known some families of mountaineers from the Engadine would every year in the fall come down in Zurich to undergo a treatment at Muller's laboratory, after which they invariably declared having spent a much better winter than otherwise, a winter without catarrhs and influenza.

A chemist specialized in the physiology of fermentation helped with these experiments, which were made in a laboratory where the conditions of temperature and light could be well checked and kept practically constant.

Fermentation bacteria were found to be arrested in their development by the action of magnetic radiation, whereas experiments on luminous bacteria gave rather unexpected results, their growth being either checked or promoted by the magnetic field, according to the way the apparatus was arranged.

The most remarkable result, however, was that the "feeding medium" containing the bacteria would under the action of the alternating magnetic field become immunized against any further infection.

Some striking series of tests on luminous bacteria have been recorded on plates. One illustrates the variable blackening of the photographic plate

Q. Is it correct to say "I saw a certain party last night?" M. S. G.

A. It depends upon the meaning to be conveyed. If the reference is to a party of people it may be used, but not when the word is used as a synonym for "person." Party is used in the singular as a legal term, the right or left of the choir director? W. J. S.

A. In arranging a chorus it is customary for the soprano singers to be placed at the right of the director as he faces the group.

Q. When do deer shed their antlers? W. C. F.

A. Deer shed their antlers annually.

These experiments would seem to confirm the fact brought out by common experience at Mr. Muller's laboratory that organs infected by bacteria are made more resistant by a magnetic treatment.

LOOKS LIKE A NOISY ONE

French Women Toil In Fields

(From The Manchester Guardian.)

Everyone was struck during the war by the way in which French women kept the fields and farms going single-handed. Probably as many French women are working today on the land but they are less conspicuous since they are working with the men. All along the war front it is a striking spectacle to see the women helping to cut corn, removing stones, hoeing, digging potatoes, even in the more devastated parts clearing the ground and sowing it to its normal condition. On the small farms whole families are working together and there are quite as many women as men. In Champagne the vineyards are worked to a very great extent by the women of the family and those women who have no ties of their own have themselves out to do agricultural work, just as a man would.

At present, in view of the shortage of labor and the abundant harvest, families are being invited from the towns to help on the land. The invitation has not met with very great response and conditions of work for the peasant women are for the most part inhumanly hard. Besides cooking and keeping the house going—without, be it understood, modern conveniences—they work in the fields and gardens and vineyards the rest of their time. They get up before it is light and they work until it is too dark to see, so that for two, or three months their amount of sleep is reduced to a minimum.

Agricultural work is for the most part particularly hard in France, since so much of it is done upon old-fashioned lines. Side by side with modern machinery from America corn is being cut and bound by hand and while the men for the most part do the actual cutting it is not necessarily confined to them. Sunday's do not count during the busy season. This year a good deal of corn has been bent down by the weather and this again necessitates a greater amount of labor. Both men and women—to say nothing of the children—are pressed into service, and while the French peasant woman is amazingly strong the hard work ages her, until at 40 she often looks like an old woman.

Catholic Home Will Be Opened With Parties

The board of directors of the former Forester Home association and officers of the Catholic Knights of Wisconsin and the Knights of Columbus will meet at the Catholic home on Wednesday evening to discuss matters pertaining to the use of the home by the three lodges. The first meeting of each lodge in the home will be a housewarming event when the entire building will be used by the lodge. In a recent announcement concerning the first meeting of the lodges, the dates of the meetings of the Ladies auxiliary of the Catholic Order of Foresters and the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters were confused. The auxiliary will meet on the third Wednesday while the women Foresters will meet on the second Wednesday. Their regular meetings are scheduled now for the first and third Wednesday for the auxiliary and the second and fourth Wednesday for the women's lodge.

Dinner-Dance Opens 1924 For Pythian Lodge

More than 170 members and friends of Knights of Pythias were entertained Monday night at one of the largest and most successful New Year dinner dances that the organization ever has held. Castle hall was decorated in red and white and the guests were provided with caps, balloons, whistles and other New Year favors.

Following the dinner, Dr. J. A. Holmes spoke to the knights and ladies on what was suspected to be "New Years Resolutions," but which in general were far from being serious. Joseph Humphrey entertained with a Negro story, and responded with several more at the request of the audience.

The dancers were supplied with bright colored streamers and serpentine, and soon after the dancing began the hall presented a festive appearance. Sterling five orchestra furnished the music.

K. OF C. CELEBRATING REMOVAL TO NEW HOME

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Multisilf cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Multisilf cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months.

CHURCH SOCIETIES

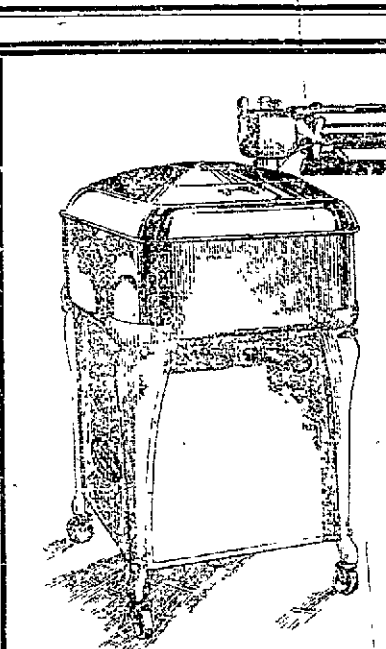

Ladies Aid society of German Methodist Episcopal church will meet with Mrs. F. Krueger, 852 Clark-st., Thursday afternoon. The business session will be followed by a social hour.

Ladies Aid society of St. John Lutheran church is to meet at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the basement of the church. Officers for the coming year are to be elected at this meeting.

Ladies Aid society of First English Lutheran church will meet at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon in the church. Plans for the work which the society will take care of in 1924 will be discussed.

Olivia Branch society of Mr. Olivia Lutheran church had its regular meeting Monday night in the church parlors, followed by a waltz party. At the business meeting Herbert Schultz, educational leader, gave a short review of the topics discussed in 1923. Games and stunts entertained the members until 12 o'clock, when they welcomed the new year.

KIMBERLY LEGION POST PLANS DANCING PARTY

It was voted to order the national colors and to secure emblem buttons at the meeting of the Kimberly American legion Monday night in the Kimberly-Clark clubhouse. The legion met at a dinner served at 6:30. It also was planned to hold a dance in the clubhouse on Jan. 19.

SNOW PROVES BOON TO LUMBER CAMPS

Hauling Problem Is Solved By Storms—Record Cut Is Predicted

Birchwood — Because of recent snows, lumber companies operating in the timber districts throughout this part of Wisconsin are now both encouraged and enthusiastic over the prospects for getting their logs to the railroad landings from the woods. For a time it was feared that logs would not be hauled at all this winter. More snow is needed to make hauling a complete success.

The log cut this winter will total many millions of feet, of both hard and soft timber. The present year has been ideal for cutting timber, and hauling was a serious question until the last few days when snow has fallen to a sufficient depth to warrant extensive timber movements. Lumbermen are pleased at the snowfall, as it is possible to save thousands of dollars by not having to place cuts for red rds using shird shir sh shir for red roads in the grounds.

Lumber company operators predict that 1924 will be a most prosperous one from a lumber and wood products standpoint. The lumber cut alone will be enormous next season.

Thousands of men are now employed in the woods of northern Wisconsin and although wages have been slightly reduced in some regions of the lumbering district all men who desire employment have been given work. The lumber companies have absorbed all men who were employed on road construction and other seasonal work. Timber operations are on a greater scale than in many past seasons.

Miss Ella Benyas, who has been spending the holidays at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Benyas returned on Tuesday to Chicago. She was accompanied by Miss Hannah Benyas of Menominee, Mich., who will spend a few days in Chicago.

Keeping The Old Faith

Our New Year's Message is that we intend to "Stand by our guns" — and keep faith with you, this year, as we have in the past.

We intend to keep on growing—and must give ever-increased proof of our worthiness to do so.

For a business that steadily grows, should constantly find ways of giving better service—better styles—better qualities—better prices.

Its advantages in buying and selling expense, through this increased volume — should be shared with its patrons — in lowered prices or increased values.

That has always been the case here. We intend to make it still more noticeable this year.

1923 CROP SMALLER THAN IN 1922 BUT IT IS WORTH MORE

Better Milk Prices Encouraged
Badger Farmers Engaged
In Dairying

Production of the leading crops in Wisconsin in 1923 was below the bumper production of 1922 but farm prices on Dec. 1 were considerably better than a year ago so that in spite of low production the total farm value of Wisconsin crops in 1923 is 3 1/2 per cent above that of 1922, according to a statement prepared by Paul O. Nyhus, head of the crop reporting service of Wisconsin. Mr. Nyhus formerly was farm agent for First National Bank of Wisconsin.

The estimated farm value of all Wisconsin crops based on Dec. 1 prices was $235,000,000 for 1923 and $227,000,000 for 1922. The 1923 value is 25 percent above 1921 and 41 per cent below the peak year of 1919. This year's prices on Dec. 1 were 13 per cent higher than on the same date a year ago. Corn shows a higher value per bushel of 17 cents, potatoes 17 cents, oats 4 cents, barley 4 cents, an d hay $3.7 per ton. Rye shows a lower price of 7 cents per bushel and wheat 3 cents.

BETTER MILK PRICES

Various conditions made the past crop unusual in many respects. Spring growing weather came late; rainfall during the growing season was very spotted; many areas were affected by protracted drouths; and early frost shattered prospects of large crops of corn, potatoes and tobacco. Although weather conditions were adverse in many respects, there was a distinctly hopeful attitude on the part of farmers during the growing season. Good prices for milk and butterfat strengthened the tone of Wisconsin agriculture, and farmers generally renewed their faith in dairying as the most profitable Wisconsin farm enterprise. Milk prices at the season of largest production were 47 cents per hundred or one-third more than a year ago—a fact which brought financial relief and encouragement to large numbers. When it is remembered that about one-half of the entire income of Wisconsin farmers comes from milk or cream, it can be realized what a stimulating or a depressing effect prices of milk and butterfat have upon the farmers of this state.

HAY CROP IS SHORT

Hay is Wisconsin's leading crop both as to acreage and value. Northeastern Wisconsin had larger yields than even the good crop of last year, but in the state as a whole the crop was only fair, and in many large areas there was a shortage. Southwestern Wisconsin particularly is faced with a short crop. Farmers in northern Wisconsin having hay to sell are realizing at least $4.00 a ton more than a year ago.

Farmers were convinced during the past year as probably seldom before that alfalfa could withstand drouth conditions better than the other hay crops. Dairymen in eastern and southern Wisconsin have gradually come to know the excellent feeding value and good yields secured from alfalfa, and accordingly a marked increase in the acreage, particularly in the Fox River valley, took place this year.

EARLY FROST HURT

The bright corn prospects were shattered by early frosts of Sept. 6, 12 and 13. The crop was quite generally mature in the northern two-thirds of the state before the frost, but in the southern section frost inflicted a great loss. A constantly increasing number of silos each year absorbs about 40 per cent of the corn acreage, and this year in particularly our 100,000 silos salvaged much frosted corn. Oats and barley made average yields with the barley acreage recovering somewhat from the low acreage of 1922—the lowest in a decade. The acreage of barley was the smallest grown in Wisconsin following the disappearance of brewer demands, but this year's acreage is about 5 per cent greater than last year. Low prices reduced the acreage of rye 30 per cent from that of last year.

REDUCE POTATO ACREAGE

One of the most drastic changes in the potato acreage in the State in ten years occurred this year when Wisconsin farmers cut the acreage 17 per cent—a result of three poor potato years. Yields in northern Wisconsin were considerably above average, but in central Wisconsin drouth and dry weather brought about low yields. The price of 38 cents a bushel to farmers at this time, although low, is an improvement over the price quoted at this time a year ago.

An additional acreage of 18 percent was devoted to the canning peas industry of the State. Northern Wisconsin, as well as eastern Wisconsin had added to its acreage in this special crop in which Wisconsin leads the nation. Yields in northern Wisconsin were less affected by the dry summer than in the Dodge-co area. Due to a yield of 1,600 pounds this year as compared to 2,400 pounds last year, the total packing of canning peas in the State is 20 per cent less than a year ago.

ANOTHER CONVERT TO PUREBRED COWS

Gus Rossey Builds Splendid Herd Of Producers From Humble Start

W. F. WINSEY

"Some dairymen do not know what a good dairy cow is and you can't teach them," said Gus Rossey, who to some extent has proved this, when he said, "You might as well talk to my bull about the comparative merits of scrubs and purebred cattle as to these people. They kick about the size of their milk checks and their milk test when the trouble is not with the scales or tester but with the scrub cattle they are feeding. They do not know what a good cow will find out that a poor cow eats more than a good one and does not give as much milk. But these people cannot buy a good cow since the breeder who has one will not part with it except in consideration of an impossible price. So they must start improving their herds with purebred calves and raise their good cows themselves."

"Years ago," continued Mr. Rossey, "I had in my herd a mixed mess of native cows and grade Durhams. I did quite well as far as beef-raising was concerned but very little in milk production. I was determined to get away from raising cattle for the beef and to make dairying pay I decided to gradually displace my scrub cows with purebred Guernseys."

SMALL START

"After my choice was made, I found a breeder near Clintonville who let me have three purebred Guernsey cows on shares. In return, I gave him one-half the increase and raised my share of the better calves. I later bought two heifer calves from a breeder near Kenosha and two more from another breeder near Waukesha. These animals were the foundation of my present herd."

"I never went to the trouble of getting papers on my Guernseys. Registration is all right for a breeder who wishes to raise cattle to sell at fancy prices but for milking purposes a cow not registered is just as good as any registered cow on earth. It is too much trouble and expense to keep records of cows kept exclusively for dairy purposes."

DOES OWN TESTING

"Neither my purebreds nor grades are now tested individually. I believe in testing associations and used to belong to one but there is no association in this vicinity at the present time. I keep tab on a cow in my own way and if she does not suit me in productive powers, I get rid of her as soon as possible. I sold four such cows last summer. I keep purebred heifers but sell grade calves to dairymen and bull calves to the butcher. Around here it is almost impossible to sell purebred cows because dairymen do not wish to pay the price."

Mr. Rossey has 39 cattle in his herd. About half of the herd is purebreds. With the herd size which he purchased from Mr. Jamison, Mr. Rossey has five registered animals. He is milking 24 cows. In September, his milk test was 4.9 and in October 4.5. Last summer during the flush season, Mr. Rossey was marketing 750 pounds of milk daily. In October, the flow of milk for various reasons was cut down one-half.

Edna Ferber Gives Views On Matrimony

People who live in a "small town" like Appleton fancy that one is free from gossip in Chicago and New York. Edna Ferber, nationally known writer whose home formerly was in Appleton, is being given a deal of gossip publicity just because she has taken an apartment in New York. She is a native New Yorker, and so the subjects of marriage and divorce even a famous short story writer cannot move into a new home without arousing the suspicions of thousands who just know that she "must be going to be married!"

When Edna Ferber was in the midst of having her apartment for herself and her mother, she was asked concerning her approaching marriage. She daily denied that she was planning for a wedding but was led to talk on the subject of marriage with the following results according to Joseph R. Fleisher, her interviewer:

Miss Ferber does not believe in separate establishments for the bride and the groom. She would want her husband right in the same apartment with her.

Miss Ferber would choose a man with whom she was sure that she could take a walk on a rainy afternoon ten years after the wedding and not mind the weather.

Miss Ferber thinks that there is nothing more indecent than a couple not interested in each other continuing in matrimony.

Miss Ferber says that she supposes that she is more interested in the poncey blond type, tall and slender than in any other as matrimonial possibilities.

Miss Ferber bars college boys and elderly brokers from her list of matrimonial prospects.

BEGIN WORK SOON ON SAFE DRIVERS CLUB

Organization of an Automobile Safety club, sponsored by the chamber of commerce and referred to the welfare committee of that organization is to be effected soon. Due to the holiday trade the committee has held no meetings, but expects to call one early in January.

The purpose of the club is to protect pedestrians and drivers, to reduce insurance risks, and remove hazards from the city. It will use also its influence in securing legislation for the protection of life and property. After working out detailed plans for the club the committee will submit its recommendations to the board of directors of the chamber.

COMPILE DATA ON FEED FOR CATTLE

Iowa College Of Agriculture Announces Results Of Experiments

Interesting comparative data on roughages fed to dairy cattle and the production of milk and dairy products as a result has been compiled by the Iowa State college of agriculture. Wide publicity is being given to this information in the hope that farmers will be able to increase production by more careful feeding.

The experiments conducted by the college indicated that:

1. The use of corn fodder instead of corn silage reduces milk production 6 per cent and fat production 3 per cent.

2. When the value of dry matter in silage was worth 66 cents per 100 pounds that in corn fodder was worth 31 1/2 cents.

3. With silage valued at $1.50 per ton, an acre of corn yielding eight tons of green feed and converted into silage will yield $38 worth of feed, whereas, if converted into fodder the value of the crop will be reduced to $16.21 per acre.

4. When timothy hay is used to replace alfalfa hay in a good dairy ration the production of milk and butterfat is reduced seven per cent.

5. With alfalfa hay at $15 per ton timothy hay is worth 86 cents per ton for feeding producing cows.

6. When corn fodder and timothy hay are introduced in a ration in place of corn silage and alfalfa hay there is a decrease in 18 per cent in milk and 14 per cent in fat production.

7. When the two poor roughages, corn fodder and timothy hay, are fed together, this combination gives to them a slightly higher value individually than where one is fed with a good roughage, but good production or economical returns from feeds cannot be obtained.

8. Corn silage and a legume hay (alfalfa) are the best roughages for dairy cattle, while corn fodder and timothy hay are poor.

9. If the corn crop is all to be fed to the cows it should be put in the silo. On the other farm hays such as timothy should be sold and legume hays purchased in their stead.

How To Stop Sour Stomach

Chronic With Many People—Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Bring Quick Comfort—Sweeten and Stop Acid, Sour Blisters and Such Dyspeptic Disorders

When the fact is considered that even careful people, those who follow diet rules, get attacks of indigestion no argument is needed to recommend the best means of relief. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used by lawyers, doctors, teachers, by business men, high officers, society women, industrial workers, clerks, and the worst abused stomach in the world, those of a host of travelers.

For thirty years people have learned that they may eat what they like or what is set before them, and no matter what the condition of the stomach if due to dyspepsia, these wonderful tablets stop gasiness and sour risings, they give the stomach the alkaline effect which overcomes acidity and thus they either avoid distress after eating or else they quickly relieve it. Be fortified. Get a 50-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store and arm yourself against indigestion and acid.

I SPIED TODAY

CARS IN THE BLIZZARD

On the way to Green Bay in Sunday's blizzard I spied and Oldsmobile at McCarty's crossing that apparently had failed to make the turn coming south. The car was propped up with a piece of a sapling tree and was resting comfortably on the mound of ground between the C & N W right-of-way, and the interurban tracks, with the two front wheels broken and the "Look out for the cars" sign draped gracefully over one fender and the hood.

Leaving Green Bay at 4:30 in the height of the storm, we counted 39 cars on the road between towns, as against 204 counted on a pleasant evening about a month ago. In the hour's run from Green Bay to Appleton.

BRINGING UP FATHER

ON THE SCREEN

BIG CROWDS APPLAUD "THE MEANEST MAN"
"The Meanest Man in the World," now showing at the Elito Theatre, won the approbation of a typical first night audience. It is a high-powered comedy drama of the type of comedies style directed by Edward E. Cline.

Bert Lytel, as the soft-hearted, unbusinesslike young lawyer, wins the affection of everyone in his futile attempts to be the meanest man in the world. Blanche Sweet is a lovely, sympathetic heroine, the lady of Bert's heart.

Two other love affairs which help to keep the heart interest at a high pitch, are those of Bryant Washburn and Maryon Ayre, and Helen Lynch and Lincoln Steedman. The two latter, respectively the stenographer and office boy in Bert's office, do some of the old-fashioned drudgery that stands out in this snappy comedy-drama.

Others in the cast who contribute excellent characterizations are Ward Crane, Frances Raymond, Carl Stockdale, Forrest Robinson, Robert Dunbar, Victor Hotel, William Conklin and Tom.

Victor Hotel is his usual rube self, a clerk in a small country store. Forrest Robinson makes a beloved character out of the old shoe mender, friend and champion of Blanche Sweet. Ward Crane is the successful lawyer who tries to inject some of his old-fashioned business methods into Bert, without success.

BARTHELMSS IN YOUTHFUL ROLE
Richard Barthelmess returns to a modern role in "Twenty-One," a film picture which comes to the Elito Theatre tomorrow, after almost a year in which he has played nothing but costume character parts. "Twenty-One," with its bathing parties, its taxi bandits and its strong modern theme, should have widespread appeal to those fans who wish to see Barthelmess in the costume of 1923.

Barthelmess himself executes a jump from the heavy character roles in "The Fighting Blade" to a typical youth of today, which, according to preview reports on "Twenty-One," has plays with an ease that is a tribute to his versatility. The picture is said to replace with human touches and comedy and presents a powerful climax revolving about one of the great problems of the present day—the habits of the younger generation.

All the exterior scenes in "Twenty-One" were filmed in the Wisconsin Country Club and at Samuel Untermyer's famous estate, Greystone.

NORMA TALMADGE IN BRILLIANT PHOTOPLAY
"De Luxe Annie," Norma Talmadge's production, Richard Darrow, here today and Thursday at the New Bijou theatre, is said to be vastly different from the average crock play. It tells the story of a finely-bred woman whose husband is interested in criminal psychology and who is herself transformed into a criminal by accident.

Norma Talmadge is especially suited for the title role in this screen drama which calls for beauty, style and a high order of artistry in the star. Miss Talmadge's performance in this picture brings out every shade of emotional feeling in her portrayal of this New England lifer. It is cast on the commonplace by the force of her vivid personality as well as by the odd psychological twist of the story.

Besides Eugene O'Brien, who plays the leading supporting role, the cast includes Frank Mills, Richard Darrow, Fred Sauer, Joseph Burke, Edna Tamm, Harriet Jenkins and others. Roland West directed the picture.

FORGETS IN DAREDEVILRY
Harold Lloyd, in the role of a disappointed lover who seeks to forget his New England upbringing by assuming the role of a daredevil today and Thursday in his two reel Pathe comedy, "Number Please."

The title of this Hal Roach mirthquake was inspired by the hero's series of adventures with some busy telephone booths. A large portion of the action takes place at a pleasure resort where roller coasters, Ferris wheels, merry-go-rounds, laughing mirrors and balloons take a part in the riotous fun moments.

NEW STREET LIGHTS CUT RADIO "FRYING"
By Associated Press
Monroe—Monroe radio fans are enthusiastic about the prospects of having "frying" eliminated from their concerts. The city's old system of arc lights is blamed for much of this, the type of current used being of this kind which produces static in receiving sets. Manager Warren F. Turner of the Wisconsin Telephone company has a force of men busy equipping the city with incandescent lights at every corner and the new circuits will be in operation by Feb. 1. Radio bugs eagerly await the day for although the city council did not have the "listeners" in mind when it ordered the arc lights, the city fathers are finding them the most appreciative of all citizens.

FALL CAUSES DEATH OF PICKLE PLANT HEAD
By Associated Press
Marshfield—John Ballian, state manager of the Libby, McNeil & Libby pickle factories, was fatally injured at Sheldon, near here, when he fell eight feet from a cylindrical pickle tank, fracturing his skull. He was 51 years old and had lived in Marshfield since 1909.

Isaar Pupils Stick To Books To Gain Time

Special to Post-Crescent
Isaar—Pupils of Isaar public school are not enjoying the usual holiday vacation. After a year's account of the time lost at the beginning of the semester, when a late start was made because of rebuilding, the pupils were excused only on Christmas day and New Years.

County Line school has been closed during the two-day holiday vacation. Miss Gertrude Ebert of Milwaukee spent the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ebert.

Miss Laura Loewenhagen of Appleton, spent a few days with her mother, Mrs. William Loewenhagen. Albert Knuth of Green Bay, spent a few days here with friends.

Misses Mildred and Alice Snell, Mildred Brady, Arnes Strelke and Frances Ulmer and Herbert Hansen and Walter Melcher, students at the Seymour high school, are spending two weeks vacation at their respective homes.

OAKDALE MAN DIGS UP BURIED TREASURE
Tomah—While cleaning up a small place of ground which he had purchased from Mr. William Mann, Fred Gabower, Oakdale, dug up a china mug containing a considerable sum of money in gold coin. Speculation is rife as to how the money came to be in that location, but the most generally accepted story is that it was blown there in a cyclone several years ago.

The insurance committee of the Y. M. C. A., composed of W. S. Smith, W. M. Russell and A. J. Tuttle will meet the latter part of the month to take up the matter of fire insurance for the new addition and the main building.

RAILROAD DELAYS FIRE DEPARTMENT ON NEW LONDON TRIP

Firemen Ready to Go At 1 O'clock But Didn't Get Started Until 4

Difficulty in getting started out of Appleton hampered the Appleton fire department in rendering timely assistance to the men who were fighting the New London fire. Because of the huge snow drifts on the Hortonville New London road, it was impossible to make the trip by motor power of the fire apparatus.

A request was made for a switch engine and cars of the Chicago and Northwestern railway, but it was not until 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon that the apparatus was enroute for New London. The summons was received here at 1 o'clock.

Slow progress was made after the apparatus was aboard the special train consisting of an engine, flat car and caboose. When the fire equipment arrived in New London at about 6 o'clock, word was sent to the station that it was not necessary to unload.

Not knowing whether to place reduction upon the report, the firemen unloaded and went to the fire where the report was confirmed. The conflagration was already well under control and the services of the Appleton equipment was not required.

One triple combination hose, chemical and pump truck, No. 1, made the trip. It was back at the local fire station at about 10 o'clock, but suffered some damage in unloading at the tracks between Superior and North Division. Firemen in the trip were Michael Cahlin, assistant chief, Chris Delgen, A. F. Bellke, Archie Patterson, Edwin Kline and Paul Crouch.

threatened building. This structure was of solid brick.

Home Trade Shoe company, managed by H. H. Horan, lost very little because the concern was housed in a solid brick building which the flames did not readily attack.

An ironed building owned by M. J. Jelliff and occupied by Schmitz Bros. bakery, was badly burned but most of the equipment and stock had been removed.

A two-story solid brick building owned by J. C. Lyons and occupied by Mrs. M. Swift, milliner, was not much damaged but the millinery stock is almost a total loss. Families living upstairs were able to save considerable of their property.

DYNAMITE BUILDING

Another two story frame structure owned by Mr. Lyons and occupied by the C. Reuter cigar store was damaged and then torn apart by trucks in order to stem the fire. Firemen were able to get closer to the heart of the fire as a result.

A new brick building of fireproof construction, owned by M. J. Heins and occupied by his tire shop, was slightly damaged by the dynamite blast, but was not injured by fire. There was some loss to the Heins household furniture in the hurried effort to remove it from the building.

A small frame building adjoining the fire soon was in ruins and the building owned by E. A. Kossell of Oshkosh and operated by G. A. Savall was next to go. The flames spread to the east, engulfing the Krause meat market and soon the interior was in flames. Very little was saved. The heat was so intense that considerable damage was caused to the new concrete block addition to the
